

Democracy demands the availability of a wide range of public voices. The people of our nation have a right to hear all the opinions and to make the best-informed decisions. More consolidation means less democracy.